

Convenience Stores Keep Drivers Fueled

For the foreseeable future, gasoline will be the fuel of choice for U.S. drivers.

There are 222 MILLION DRIVERS in the United States, and there are 122,500 CONVENIENCE STORES

that sell 80% of the gasoline sold in the country to keep U.S. drivers fueled up and on their way.

Snapshot of the average U.S. driver:

33 Miles
The average driver travels about 33 miles per day

86%
Most Americans get to work each day by driving or carpooling

52 Minutes
The average driver commutes 26 minutes each way to/from work

530 Gallons
Americans consume about 530 gallons of gas per year

58%
of gas customers say that price is the main consideration for where they fuel up

75%
of gas customers pay with a credit or debit card

45%
also go inside the convenience store to buy food and beverages, or use the ATM or restroom

(Sources: NACS Fuels Resource Center; U.S. Energy Information Administration; U.S. Census Bureau)

Fuels Resource Center

Get an insider's view of how fuel is produced, refined and ultimately sold at U.S. convenience stores at convenience.org/fuels